

Real World Search

Idea # 16

I suppose the title of this is slightly misleading. So let me clarify. Sorry, no, this isn't a device to search through all 24 seasons of real world for classic, absurd, awkward, or funny moments (though that would be cool!). It's a device to... oh real quick though about the Real World show, did you know they are about to release season 25?! At least according to my sources they are about to. My sources are possibly Wikipedia (but isn't that everyone's source for everything now a days? Source for that source is also Wikipedia). I mean can you believe they are on season 25?!?! WOW! You have to admit it's a rather addictive show though! I've watched it from time to time over the years. In fact my favorite season was the one with that skate boarder Julie chick. I think it was maybe the New Orleans season from 2000 (Pronounced narleeeeeaaaaans). Ok again this is kind of confusing as well, because they JUST did a NEW New Orleans season, last season. So I guess technically it would be Old Orleans, right?

At any rate I'm not talking about THAT real world. I'm talking about the "real" real world! You know, the tangible physical world we live in right now. OK so honestly I want this. I want this now. And REAL-ly (pun intended) by "now" I mean yesterday. And by "yesterday" I mean 11 years ago when the Old Orleans season of real world first aired... well... I think you get the idea. But just in case you are possibly still unsure of how bad I want this idea to be real... I want it Charlie and Wonka's Veruca Salt style. So I'm Veruca and this idea is a Golden Goose. "GOOSE'S, GEESE'S, I WANT IT NOW!"

Seriously though, this would be the best thing ever... Ready for it? (Although you already know what it is from the title) REAL WORLD SEARCH! Think about it my friend reading this out there on them there these internets. This isn't your average phone locator beep function like they had in the 90's on cordless phones...

In case your memory is a little hazy allow me to refresh you on how that function worked.

Here's a small example scenario (it's funny, you should read it, even if you know how cordless phone beep functions work):

Roommate A: Where's the cordless phone?

Roommate B: I don't know, use the beepy thingy to locate it, it's probably in your room!

Roommate A: Why is it that you always say everything is in MY room when it's missing?

Roommate B: Because... everything always IS always in your room when it's missing.

Roommate C: roommate B has a point.

Roommate A: hey excuuuuuse me... This is an A and B conversation so why don't you just C your way out of it?!?!?

Roommate C: What... EVERRRRRRRRRR...

Roommate B: Just do the beepy thing already!

Roommate C: ...RRRRRRRRRRRRR...

Roommate A: O M G Fiiinnnneeee!

Roommate C: ...RRRRRRRRRR!

**Roommate A pushes phone base station and the phone beeps in bathroom**

Roommate A, B and C together: THE BATHROOM???

Roommate A: How did the phone end up in the liter box? DOES ANYONE KNOW WHY THE PHONE IS IN THE CAT'S LITER BOX???

**Roommate B and C look at each other with surprised faces and a look of sudden recognition. They then giggle like schoolgirls**

Roommate A: What's SOOOOOOOO funny?

Roommate C: I "C" someone had a little too much to drink last night and OBVIOUSLY doesn't remember "acting like their cat" right before passing out.

Roommate A: OH... MY.... GOD.... GROSSSSSSSSSSSS... EW... GROSS... EW EW EW... I'm going to shower.... And then after that we're going to the mall and buying a new phone. And new clothes.

-Fin-

Ahem... Right, well, now that you remember how that worked, back to the idea.

This is a full out search device for the real world. So maybe it's some kind of pocket sized contraption or maybe it's some sort of iPhone or Droid app. But everywhere you go you have it always in the palm of your hand and ready to use.

So Mr. Smarty Pants... How does something like this work?

Yea, ok so I'll admit I'm not exactly sure how this thing would work. Maybe it channels God, or past Real World cast members (I'm convinced it takes special powers of some sort to get on that show. So I would imagine they must have some kind of connection to the heavens to pull those sorts of strings... and if we could just harness those connections...). Or... maybe it's some kind of new physics quantum mechanics Stephen Hawking electro magnetic mathematical algorithmic happening thing. Although I suppose the last option is that it could always be David Blaine style magic. I'm just gonna go with magic. It will work off of magic (most devices these days are Intel inside, but, this is David Blaine inside). Oh annnnnnd maybe... 80's music (like Billy Idol and Blaine together as one). So one of the side effects of it (yes this product has side effects, you have been warned) is that you will be forced to rock out to 80's music such as Mr. Roboto, or White Wedding every time you use it.

Thank you very much Mr.. Roboto... Hey little sister... It's a nice day to... start again.

1 part magic, one part 80's music, 1 part real world... no road rules though, that bones/skull/antelope thing on the front bumper just creeps me out! They should drive around with a stuffed animal of Alf tied to the bumper. That would be waaaaaaay cooler. And/Or, equally as creepy.

OK so in theory how exactly does one use this device?

All right here we go: You hold "said" device in hand. Then in your MIND you picture what you are looking for (or if that's too futuristic then you type it in on your iPad, or whatever device you are running the app on). Within a few seconds it scans the surrounding area and WAWA... I mean... Voila... There's your stuff! You can input how much area you want it to scan. Maybe just the room you are in or the building or the entire development or dorm or apartment complex or townhouse, or town that you live in...

Actually, you can search the whole planet. Oh, but here's the catch: It only searches for your own stuff. So if you want to search for someone else's things they have to be present in the room and they have to consent to it. Or they have to be holding the device. So you can't go snooping around for your roommates umm... "private" video collection. I know that was your first thought!

This was you the reader just now as you were reading that last paragraph: "Sweet!!! Now I can search for my roommates private vid... oh... dang it!"

Ok now that I've cleared THAT up, I'll be continuing on. So I think you get the gist idea. There isn't much more to say about it. I mean basically no one would ever lose anything ever again! Because no matter where you left that awesome shirt top or those swanky swim trunks, or your car keys, you would always be able to find them using this device! I suppose, that is, unless you lost the device too. Seriously though, if you can't keep track of this ONE thing I can't help you. I give up. You are destined by fate to lose your crap.

There are just two things I'd like to mention, they aren't problems per say such as like losing the device itself. That's one pretty big issue. I mean maybe you just have to buy two of them and that way when you lose the first device you can find it using the second, unless you lose the second... *make hand to forehead face palm like action now*. But the two things I'd like to mention are simply these two things...

The first: If this existed 11 years ago as I mentioned in the beginning of this Idea writing, one of the greatest movies ever made would never have been made: "Dude, Where's My Car". And of course the second: All girls would forever be virgins. "Lost my... nope I found it again, everything is A-OK."

There you have it!

All this for ONLY $29 bucks. If you call now we'll throw in two additional devices absolutely free. Shipping and handling is 7 thousand-ish dollars. ACT NOW! (The shipping price was Dane Cook's idea. He suggested 7 thousand-ish dollars.)